A Planner's Plan

How many people? What kind of theme should we have? Where should we have it? What's it going to cost? Decorations, food, venue, cost, etc, etc, etc. the list goes on and on. What an exhausting preparation of endless possibilities to create that special day. Without considering any of these variables carefully, a special event is bound for failure. Worry no more; I am here to ease that pain. My passion is planning. I am here to serve, to add that special touch, to make people smile. A soon-to-be graduate of the School of Tourism and Hospitality Management Program at Temple University, I specialize in event planning. From small and simple, to large and extravagant, planning special events has been a passion of mine for several years. With a concentration in Destination and Event Management, my plans include interning with an event planning company in the greater Philadelphia area this summer. From my senior internship, I will gain the necessary knowledge needed to pursue my career. From working in restaurants, catering, hospitality, and management, I will take these past experiences and open my own event planning company. With my creativity, passion, and experiences, party throwers will never lift a finger again. I'm here to serve you.

Home is where the Heart is

It all started seven years ago; a naive high school student had found her first job. This job was a server in a local retirement community. Without experience nor a care in the world, she did her job as any adolescent would. Over the next few years, her adolescence turned into passion. She fell in love working with the residents who came to the dining room every night. She enjoyed taking on more responsibility and quickly matured. That girl was me. After two years, I became the youngest manager in the dining room at the age of 17. Managing my peers was a great challenge but the passion was there. Eventually, I coordinated all the events that took place in dining services including: meetings, birthdays, private events, theme dinners, holiday parties, etc. On the side, working as secretaries in office buildings and other 9—5 jobs, quickly made me realize, managing and serving people is where I belong. This is what I love to do. Working as a Service Coordinator for six years in the retirement community opened the gateway to my dreams. I found my home.
