

March 1, 2010

Quick Facts:

- Sport and Recreation Management Major; Business Minor
- 8 years of football experience
- Interned at company with a focus on the business side and on-field aspects of the industry
- Team player
- Diehard Philadelphia sports fan

Phone: 610-324-9473
E-mail: jploggia@temple.edu
Address: 24 Huntingdon Farm Drive
Glen Mills, PA 19342

School of Tourism and Hospitality
Management
TEMPLE UNIVERSITY®

John-Paul Loggia

Skills & Experience

Upon graduating from Temple University in the School of Tourism and Hospitality Management with a degree is Sport and Recreation Management and a business minor, I feel I will have many skills and strengths to bring to the table of the sport industry. Along with my education in the industry, I also played organized football for 8 years and learned what takes place on the field as well as what goes on behind the game.

Some of the skills I feel I have developed throughout school are good communication skills, especially in groups, people generally see me as a leader and I am able to head projects and work well with all members. Along with being a good leader and communicator, I also am very dedicated to my work and will do whatever is needed of me to get the job done.

The experience in the sport industry that I have is my years playing football and an internship I completed in my junior year at the Philadelphia Sports Training Center (PSTC). My internship taught me what it takes to run your own company on a small level. The PSTC served mainly high school athletes providing them with speed and training programs along with classroom help and test preparation. I learned how to make calls to clients, reach and secure sponsors for events, organize and oversee events from start to finish, and also how to coach and work with young athletes and kids.

Previous to this internship, I had never really worked in that area and it really helped me see what it takes to keep things running, even things as simple as a twice a week training program.

With these skills and experiences, I feel I will be able to bring some valuable knowledge with me wherever I go that will help the company succeed.

Future Goals

In the summer of 2010, I am hoping to attain an internship in the realm of college athletics. I am very interested in pursuing a career in operations, facility management, or fan development and through my senior internship, I am hoping to get an opportunity with a university or college that will allow me to explore those areas. With my abilities to communicate and willingness to do whatever is necessary, I feel that I can be a valuable member of any university if given the chance. I hope to get into a major university football program and through my hard work and perseverance, hopefully get the opportunity to work as a full time employee upon completion of the internship and graduation from Temple University.