“The word impossible is not in the leaders’ dictionaries. No matter how big the challenges, strong faith, determination and resolve will overcome them.”-Sheikh Mohammed bin Rashid Al Maktoum

Obtaining a bachelor of science from the School of Tourism and Hospitality Management speaks volumes within itself.

Coming from such a prestigious program gives me a competitive advantage. Upon my expected graduation in September 2010, I will have completed all the well-rounded coursework, have completed hundreds and hundreds of hours of hands-on experience and have an expanding network of people I’ve met over the years.

Being heavily involved within the program over the past few years has given me great exposure and opportunity. By the conclusion of this class, I hope to be mentally and professionally ready to say goodbye to student life and enter the working world. Even though I will never stop growing, learning and developing professionally, the School of Tourism and Hospitality Management has completed its mission in educating, instilling leadership and knowledge in me.

Quick Facts About Me

- I completed my junior internship in Anguilla located in the British West Indies.
- I want to obtain an internship with the tourism and hospitality industry where I can maximize my skills in customer service, quality assurance, and hospitality management.

- I was the first recipient of the John Mannino Endowed Scholarship.
- I have a strong interest in traveling and learning about new cultures.
