

March 2, 2010

Volume 1, Issue 1

Special points of interest:

- Temple University
- Philadelphia Country Club

In this issue:

College 1

Intemship 1

Montague and Associates

Temple University

My time at Temple University has been one of enlightenment.

I have been enrolled at Temple since the Spring of 2008. My major is Sport and Recreation Management. Thankfully the curriculum at Temple requires more than just sport related classes.

In my five semesters I have taken a broad range of courses including Intro to Political Philosophy, Representing the real American Race to Macroeconomics and Management Information Systems.

This last semester we mainly concentrate on major requirements which includes a Senior Professional Development Seminar. This class will act as the bridge from college to the real world of life and business.

Along with four other course I

Philadelphia Country Club

This past summer I was employed by the Philadelphia Country Club as their Summer Golf Intern.

During this summer I participated in many aspects of the golf industry.

Some of my duties included assisting the Head Professional with coordination of tournaments, implementation of a hope to learn the most from Senior Seminar so I will be able to survive in the ever increasingly sparse job market. If anything, I will have strengthened my level of social intelligence.

Sport Industry.

video swing analysis initiative, helping implement their green initiative of all paperless communication, and assisting with management of store inventory along with finalization of pro shop sales.

The experiences I encountered while working with these professionals will help me become an asset to any company in the