

STEVI L. ADAMS

The Journey of Success

VOLUME 1, ISSUE 1

1 / 3 / 2010

The Beginning

In August of 2001, I traveled to Egypt for two weeks with a group named the D'Zert club. A year prior to traveling to Egypt I had to learn about my cultural background before being able to travel. Without prior knowledge my father signed my brother and I up for this club, making it mandatory that we attend every meeting. Classes were held and homework was given to everyone in this club about Egypt and its history. This was my first lesson on learning real history and not learning by rote. While spending two weeks in Egypt everyday was a learning experience. Egypt was beautiful to say the least and it was truly one of the greatest experiences thus far in my life. This opened up my eyes to a new world, a world that has yet to be discovered by me. At 12 years old I did not realize just how important this trip would be and how grateful I have become because I had the opportunity to travel. At a young age I was able to experience something, some people never get to experience in their lifetime. This was the beginning of my thirst for knowledge.

Interests:

- Writing
- Mentoring
- Volunteering

Strengths:

- Honesty
- Integrity
- Determined
- Well Organized
- Able to Prioritize
- Punctual

Schooling for Success

Transferring to Temple in January of 2007 from West Virginia University has been sort of a culture shock. These two schools were like night and day. Transferring to Temple University with an open mind I embraced the closeness of the School of Tourism and Hospitality Management. Now a senior and majoring in Sports and Recreation Management has been interesting to say the least. During my Junior Internship I worked with the non-profit organization Black Women in Sports Foundation who's mission is to help underprivileged children participate in more sport activities. While completing my internship I learned about quality service, site setup, client relations, donor relations, personnel, marketing and promotion. Most of my goals were fulfilled and I enjoyed my short time with the organization. In my short time with BWSF I have had the opportunity of having 100% hands on training and my opinion as well as my informative input was always valued. After my different experiences at STHM I can see Graduate school on the horizon.